Not illustrated. 1881 Excerpt: .as he lacks a knowledge of its peculiar characteristics, and prosperity requires one specially familiar with its manipulation. B is met by A and the opening discussed. B has had the required experience and understands the business. The conference terminates in the formation of a co-partnership in which A furnishes the capital for purchasing and conducting the enterprise, and B supplies the skill and ingenuity for its prosperous manipulation: thus the interests of each are enhanced by the consolidation. The circumstances which demonstrate that a copartnership exists are the implied evidences that an agreement has been entered into by the parties composing it. This agreement may exist in the form of a written instrument bearing the signatures of the parties in interest, or may rest in a verbal understanding between them. It is a common occurrence to find the objects and conditions of a copartnership placed...
