Nor do I think 27 your disposition to be worse than that of some mean people: who having embraced rules different from their former way of life, will endure to be torn limb from limb, rather than return to their old course: and now abstain from some animals, which they once ate greedily, with more care than from human flesh. I. This cannot relate to Jews, who always were under a strict rule of diet. 2. Therefore, probably, it relates to Christians, who had departed from their former way of living, and were then, generally, mean people, or so esteemed by Porphyrie. They did not abstain from any kinds of animals, bui they generally forbore to eat blood, and refused to eat animals that were strangled, from which the blood had not been...
