Japanese Cooperation in Human Spaceflight: Hearing Before the Committee on Science, U. S. House of Representatives, One Hundred Fourth Congress, First Session, October 19, 1995 The committee met, pursuant to notice, at 10:05 a.m. in room 2318, Rayburn House Office Building, Hon. Robert S. Walker chairman of the committee presiding. The Chairman. The hearing will come to order. During the year in which we commemorate the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II, I am pleased that we have the opportunity to hold this hearing to highlight the successes of the United States and Japan in the area of space cooperation. Our two nations extensive collaboration in this area began in 1969 with the U.S.- Japanese agreement that gave Japan access to American technology leading to the development of its first N-I and N-li rockets and more recently the H-I. Since that time, we have formed partnerships in space science, space applications, human space flight, and most notably the international Space Station Alpha to which Japan has pledged over $2 billion for...
