Syllabification is an important aid to learning, but the use of diacritical marks is negative in effect. 7. The use of words in sentences is important as emphasizing the practical utility of spelling and as giving the child opportunities for practice. 8. Definitions have less direct value and should be used sparingly. 9. If necessary, special exercises should be provided for definite training in the use of the dictionary. 10. In general, visual presentation is superior to mere auditory presentation. 11. The important exercises in visual presentation are: writing the words singly or in logical groups on the board before the children; picking out the familiar, unfamiliar, and difficult parts of words; emphasizing the unfamiliar and difficult parts; and associating these parts with similar parts of other words. 12. The loss in transfer is a decided one, but the problem is mainly one of reviews. 18. For identifying the hard parts of words teachers, at present, must rely upon certain general principles, a few detailed studies of the errors common to particular words, and their own observations. 14. Hearing or the dictation of the order of letters has little value as a separate exercise. The value of the auditory element is realized incidentally in oral spelling. 15. Oral spelling and writing are valuable exercises as providing new modes of imaging, means of expression, and connections essential to the free use of words in writing....
