Depend upon it, there is plenty in this ship worth studying. I am old enough to remember the old Kent, of about 1,000 tons, which in her day, now some twenty-five years ago, was a very crack ship, and used to run against the Marco Polo. The master of the Kent, George Gibbs, an old schoolmate at the Koyal Academy, on his return from his first voyage, wrote me as follows--the letter is before me: --We were 51d. 2h. to Cape Otway outwards. I had never had a fair days run; the best was 293 knots. Homewards, round the Horn, 58d. 3h. , including 27 hours in St. Vincent. The ship is perfect in every respect. Perhaps I am speaking rather strongly when I say...
