He whose car the winds are and the clouds The dust that waits upon His sultry march, When sin hath moved Him and His wrath is hot, Shall visit earth in mercy, shall descend Propitious in His chariot. Cowper s Task. 1 It is obvious that the poet, in thus describing our Lord s return from heaven, not only drew on the sentiment quoted above from the inspired prophet, but, as can be seen, well nigh makes use of the prophet s words. Evidently the whole trend of this first chapter is adventual. Not alone temporal judgment is intended in the severe words, nor temporary deliverance meant in the glowing promises. On the contrary, verses 3 and 5 open up Advent, and bring the final conflagration. Very solemnly...
