Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Theatre, Vol. 19: A Monthly Review of the Drama, Music, and the Fine Arts, January to June, 1892 The fact that it was not printed until 1638 may be ascribed to the interruptions the theatres suffered from at that period. In the Revels Office book is the following entry by Sir Henry Herbert, which should prove of interest. At the increase of the plague to four within the city, and fifty-four in all, this day, the 12th May, 1636, I received a Warrant from my Lord Chamberlain, for the suppressing of Playes and Shewes, and at the same time delivered my several Warrants to George Wilson, for the four companies of players, to be served upon them. En passant it may be observed that the King s Players performed occasionally during this recess, at Hampton Court and St. James s Palace, before the Royal Family. They represented Beaumont and Fletcher s Philaster; or, Love Lies Bleeding, at St. James s Palace, on Shrove Tuesday, February 21st, 1636-7. As the deaths from the plague decreased, the King granted the players their liberty and they began again soon after. But the fluctuations in the fatalities from the plague caused several suspensions until the 2nd October, 1637, when they again had permission to perform. Besides the Seven Champions of Christendoms the Biogr. Dramatica gives no particulars as to Kirke s being the author of any other piece, though in the Revels book of June, 1642, the following entries occur, which imply that he did compose other dramas: Received of Mr. Kirke, for a new play, which I burnt for the ribaldry and offence that was in it, two pounds; and again Received...
