Excerpt from The Life of George Washington, Vol. 2 of 4 Just then a guard-boat, belonging to the Lizard, came slowly along shore and discovered them. They hailed it and ordered it to land. Not complying, it was fired into, and three men were killed. The boat instantly pulled for the frigate, giving vociferous alarm. Without waiting the arrival Of the residue of his men, for whom the canoes had been despatched, Arnold led those Who had landed to the foot of the cragged defile, once scaled by the intrepid volfe, and scrambled up it in all haste. By daylight he had planted his daring ?ag on the far-famed heights of Abraham. Here the main difficulty stared him in the face. A strong line of walls and bastions traversed the promontory from one of its precipitous sides to the other; enclosing the upper and lower towns. On the right the great bas tion of Cape Diamond crowned the rocky height Of that name. On the left was the bastion of La Potasse, close by the gate of St. Johns opening upon the barracks;...
