Ehgbbooks, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: Chinese . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Kang's Information Medicine (Integrative Information Medicine according to Kang) uses the Golden Mean philosophy as its guide. The new premises are based upon the information and system theories using new approaches and modalities relating to homeopathic medicine and EAV, thereby combining the organic integration of Chinese and Western medicine. The natural query arises as to how one merges these two disciplines of medicine together. Kang's Information Medicine uses homeopathic medicine as a binder, EAV- Instrumentation and test points for tools coupled with the basic disciplines of traditional Chinese medicine in the modality of yin and yang; the five elements and organs differentiation combined with the basic disciplines of Western medicine, using anatomical science, physiology, and pathology, in methodical combination in order to achieve the desired results. Of course, traditional Chinese clinical medicine and Western clinical medicine disciplines organically blend together to form The Chain of Disease-Related Cause and Lesion. With this emphasis, there is a reliance upon the application of Yin and Yang, the Five Elements theory, Organs Differentiation, Meridian Differentiation using homeopathic medicine and EAV to determine the Chain through the diagnosis. To date, there is no other method to accomplish this outcome. In comprehending this technique and the scientific application, it differs from TCM plus WM diagnosis as well as TCM plus WM treatment. Four Divisions of the Book The first and second parts are delineated for basic and clinical articles. The principles of the bending process are revealed in step by step procedures disclosing the method of the Chain of Disease-Related Cause and Lesion, and how the practitioner prescribes the remedies. The third and fourth portions of the work reveal the Chinese meridian points as well as the...
