From his birth, he had a long white beard and flowing hair, and could speak perfectly his native tongue. His manners were majestic, and his words were few but full of wisdom. When Tsong-Kaba was three years old, solved to cut off his hair and live a solitary in the service of his god, Buddha. So, his nn shaved his head, and threw his long, flowing locks upon the ground outside the tent-door. From this hair sprang the wonderful tree. Tsong-Kaba lived many years, did, counties good and holy deeds, and at last died, the tree which had grown from his hair lived on, and was called The Tree of The I Thousand Images ; and, at last accounts, it still was alive and...
