Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Conference on Classical Studies in Liberal Education, Held at Princeton University, Saturday, June 2, 1917: Six Opinions; Some Questions and Answers; Misleading Statistics A cultural education must include the classics. It must not be based only on the classics. The Greek literature is one of the two noblest literatures in the world, the other being the English. Latin literature as such does not stand in the same rank with Greek; but it possesses an immense actual importance because the Latin civilization is the direct ancestor of modern occidental civilization, and because the Latin tongue was for fifteen centuries the cultural tongue of Europe. With one or the other, and if possible with both of these two classic languages and literatures, every liberally educated man should be familiar. He should also be familiar with at least one of the great modern culture-languages, such as French, Italian, German, Spanish or Portuguese, each of which has a noble literature. Every liberal course should also include a wide sweep of general history and pre-history also, for a liberal scholar should certainly have vividly in mind the tremendous drama of man's progress through the ages. A competent knowledge of science must also be part of any really liberal education; but this does not mean the science taught in order to turn out a commercial chemist, an engineer or an electrician. It means that the man of liberal education should be a man who in addition to a broad classical training also possesses as broad a scientific training, that the primary facts of the universe in which we live are vivid in his mind and form an integral portion of his stock of knowledge. The...
