AuthorHouse. Paperback. Condition: New. 52 pages. Dimensions: 7.7in. x 4.8in. x 0.3in. My book is a Fictional story. In the book Expedition that I wrote a team of 10 explorers and their pilot named Pat. They all had a dream of going to the Marshall Islands. When they found out that a pilot was in town wanting a team of dedicated men to be part of his team to go to the Marshall Islands, they immediately jumped on the opportunity. This is now where the story begins. The group sets off on the journey in their DC-3 Goony Bird, leaving LaGuardia International Airport. As in any survival story, along the way the team runs into repeated problems. Thus including fuel, landing, and other issues, as they track their way across the country, and then across the mighty Pacific Ocean. They then land at Honolulu International Airport in Hawaii. They then travel to Kritimata Island. Soon after landing and taking off again they run into more trouble. A swarm of Japanese planes heading toward the Philippines run straight into the team. Three Japanese planes circle and soon shoot down the DC-3. Lucky for the team they are able to find an island to crash land on. After a successful crash landing Pat finds on his map that they have indeed arrived at their destination of the Marshall Islands. The only catch is that they are on the wrong island and without any means of transportation out of the island. For the next few days the explorers battle the elements on the island with no food or communication. After a while Pat was able to fix the radio and radio a boating company in Australia to pick them up. After another couple days the boat finally arrived and the Explorers were saved. They...
