Excerpt: .and marvellous exhibitions of ground and lofty tumbling. I was a boy then and went to school just on the outskirts of the city, in Broome street. I remember the very spot (on a high hill called To relieve the etymologist of a long and tedious search for these two words, I quote from an announcement, during the previous summer, of the Maidenhead Races at the course in the Bowery Lane. No crossing, jostling, nor any kind of foul Play, will be countenanced; which detected, the Rider will be pronounced distanced. Bunker s Hill, that towered above the few neighboring houses) where I was standing with some ten or a dozen of my schoolfellows, when the tidings were brought by one of our scouting explorers that something was going on down at the Collect. Off they started in a bee line, at full speed for the waste ground, laying back of the scanty line of houses on the easterly side of the main road, now Broadway, and stretching from Anthony street up to Grand, where at a point not far, the writer says, from where the line of Leonard street joins the road, they found carpenters justfinishin g a small platform, some ten feet wide by sixty feet long, and raised a short distance above the ground. In the midst of boyish curiosity as to what it was designed for, the writer continues, we were struck dumb with amazement by the approach of a...
