A SENSOR BASED WATER MONITORING PLATFORM

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | Water is a basic requirement of human life and economy, and its quality is increasingly threatened by pollution. Therefore, efficient and real time measurements need to be performed on waterways to cope with the ever-growing threat of water pollution. Several water quality monitoring systems are proposed in literature. However, these systems are highly expensive and complex, they offer inaccurate pollution positions, and they do not perform auto-disagnosis to recover from faults and cope with the characteristics of the monitored environment. In this report, we propose a novel water quality monitoring platform which combines wireless sensor networks and radio frequency identification (RFID) technology. In fact, the system uses a set of fixed RFID tags that are deployed next to the waterway and a set of mobile sensor nodes which integrate RFID readers. This proposed water monitoring platform can offer several enhancements in comparison to the existing water monitoring platforms such as: cost effectiveness, low energy consumption, system performance monitoring, and tolerance to errors and loss of information. | Format: Paperback | Language/Sprache: english | 100 pp.
