Excerpt: .called on the defendant and stated, that he had administered on the estate of the said Elizabeth Lake, and requested payment of the legacy, to him. The defendant upon that occasion admitted, . that the legacy was in his hands, and would pay it to him, if upon inquiry, it was ascertained, he was entitled, to receive it; but no further demand was made upon him by the said John Lake.-1 It is further admitted by the state of the case, that neither the plaintiff nor any other of the heirs at law of Elizabeth Lake dec. are at this time residents of this state, nor have they been, at any time since the death of Joseph Lanning, the testator. Under these circumstances, for what time is the defendant legally chargeable with interest? If it appeared by the state of the case, or if it could be reasonably inferred from the facts therein stated, that the executor had used this money in trade or by loan, or had mingled it with, or used it in common with his own, he ought, according to the principles settled by this court, in the first instance of Voorhees v. The Executors of Voorhees, 7 Halstead, 145, to be chargeable with interest. I can find however, nothing in the case to justify such an inference. The legatee died in the state of Georgia, in 1816, and the defendant's final account was allowed and approved by the Orphans Court...
