Why does baseball hold such a sway? Is it not because it contains as many of these instinctive activities as can well be crowded into one activity? Just as seeing and hearing are most individually manifest in early life so does team consciousness develop during early puberty. After the plotting of the duration and peaks of instinctive development, a mass of material for use throughout these periods must be assembled and made ready for use. This is a full-sized job and one that I presume is being worked out simultaneously at several schools and by many people. Just as important as the material is the laboratory for its use. We must have a place to put over a...
