It s the start of the semester, and Professor Molly is dealing with the joys of being department chair: The last-minute scramble to hire adjunct instructors, the confused students caught between payment deadlines and late financial aid checks, and the mountain of paperwork required by the administration s latest half-baked student success initiatives. With her round-the-clock morning sickness (along with helpful pregnancy advice coming in from every direction), Molly can t wait for the registration rush to be over so she can settle into teaching her classes. But then Mahina State s powerful fundraising office tasks her with a special assignment: she is to serve as the personal tutierge (that s tutor-concierge) to Jeremy Brigham, whose mother happens to be fabulously wealthy and gravely ill.
