THE COMPLETE COMPACT GUIDE TO DISASTER SURVIVAL

CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 56 pages. Dimensions: 8.0in. x 5.2in. x 0.1in. Everybody talks about the weather. Why is it that, year in and year out, we are hit by the same heat spikes, cold dips, and unusual storms. In fact it has become the new normal! So why don't we talk about it as if it were the new normal? Are we genuinely surprised, each year it has happened before and will certainly happen again. If you have spoken to me recently, you may have heard me mention the fact that we now have 13 seasons. That was only humor in light of a very serious situation. Listen up people. Here is the reality. The rising heat is melting glaciers at incredible speeds and providing North East America with copious rains. Larger and more frequent storms are here and they are coming. Tornadoes, drought, solar storms, famine, floods, and quakes; all are on the rise in frequency and intensity. Not a 4 rise. Not a 5 rise. A 500 rise, and in some places an 800 rise. Statistics like these are available from the United Nations and the World Bank. They are examined, along with graphic analysis, in my new book, The Complete Compact Guide to Disaster Survival. Statistically we are experiencing over five times more natural disasters than even in 1970. It might come as a shock to some of you. Are you staying present with this message? Why would ALL natural disasters (Earth Quakes, floods, tsunami etc etc) simultaneously rise, together? What singular events or event does the future hold for you and for us all? One could characterize the majority of human history as a struggle for survival. Blessed are the pockets of humanity that, over centuries, made the...
