Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from A Plea for a Federal Commission on Tuberculosis The interest of life insurance companies in the prevention of tuberculosis can best be indicated by the facts of their mortality statistics. In the year 1914, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company paid in its Industrial Department 163,339 claims on the lives of 113,989 people, amounting to $21,449,401. Of these, 27,928 claims on the lives of 19,865 people, amounting to $3,949,421, were paid on individuals who died from pulmonary or other forms of tuberculosis. Including mortuary bonuses the figure was $4,218,139. It is probable that the experience of other Industrial life insurance companies is quite similar to that of the Metropolitan. According to the Insurance Year Book there were in force at the end of 1914, 31,134,303 Industrial insurance policies, of which 13,588,050, or 43.6 per cent. were carried by the Metropolitan. On this basis, Industrial insurance companies, during the year 1914, paid claims on the lives of nearly 46,000 working men and other members of their families amounting to over $9,000,000 for deaths due to tuberculosis. It will be seen from...
