

Islamic Manners, 2 Vols

By Naseem Ahmad

Anmol Publications Pvt. Ltd., 2003. Hardcover. Condition: New. Islam is not merely a religion or faith, it is a way of life, a complete code of conduct. It fixes the parameters of all that is in life and the world—one's routine, one's character, one's dealings, one's conduct, one's career, one's social life and above all the life hereafter. It teaches how to behave, how to earn, how to spend and how to live gracefully. It guides its followers on the path of a successful life. It also imposes sanctions and binds the believers to be fully responsible towards people around, family and friends in particular and the whole society at large. People generally know little about real Islam and even if they know, they have no authentic source to verify the facts, in the language, they know and work in. This highly academic and authentic study, based on original sources is aimed at providing the concerned readers and knowledge seekers, with an exhaustive and comprehensive book. Hopefully, the present volumes would serve the purpose. Printed Pages: 744.
