Wheeler, Over the First Church and Parish at Standish, Maine, Jan. 14, 1835 The atonement through Christ has often been, and may most properly be denominated the most essential doctrine of the gos pel. It is a doctrine too in which all Christians are agreed. But, in making this remark, it is necessary to distinguish between the mode and the fact The fact constitutes a doctrine of infinite practical moment, and in that all Christians are agreed. The mode belongs to those hidden counsels of God, which even reve lation does not permit us fully. To fathom, and it is therefore the subject of much controversy. The fact of the atonement we re cognize, whenever we offer our prayers to God as children to a propitious Father, whenever we trust his care and love, whenev er we look forward with confidence to his heavenly home. The mode we may know or not know; we may understand it rightly or may err concerning it; yet if we only trust in the fact of the atonement, and follow it out to its practical consequences, we may be sure of reaping its benefits.
