Basically no phrases to clarify. It really is written in straightforward phrases rather than hard to understand. You will not sense monotony at any moment of your own time (that's what catalogues are for concerning if you ask me).

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from History of the New-England Emigrant Aid Company, 1862: With a Report on Its Future Operations Immediately on learning of the destruction of the free-state Hotel at Lawrence, your Directors determined to rebuild it at once on the Old site. For this purpose, a new subscription-list was immediately opened, and a considerable sum obtained. The foundations Of the new hotel were laid amid great rejoicings of the people of Lawrence. The amount subscribed was faithfully applied, and an additional amount appropriated from the general fund for the same Object. The advance of this step, both in affording work and pay to those who were in actual need, and by its moral effect in encouraging the settlers, can hardly be overestimated. The Executive Committee have since thought it expedient to accept the offer of Col. S. W. Eldredge, the lessee of the former hotel, and a sound free-state man, to purchase the hotel-lot, with the foundations already laid; he engaging to erect thereon a first-class hotel, of stone or brick, at least equal in dimensions and cost to that which the Company had proposed to build. This arrangement is considered a favorable one, as it insures the completion of a structure which is deemed Of much importance; while it leaves the funds, which would have been required for this purpose, free for other useful investments. As soon as possible after the sack of Lawrence, and the destruction of our hotel and other property, your Directors forwarded to Congress a petition for remuneration for our losses, and redress Of grievances. This petition was referred to committees in both branches; and, in the House Of Representatives, a bill was reported favorable to our claim...
