Excerpt: . . . or extreme cruelty, and that the defendants or any of them were present, and aided, incited, countenanced or encouraged others in the commission of the murder, then you must find such defendants guilty of murder in the first degree. The case against the defendants, Yamane and Osaki is not parallel with the case of Republic v. Kapca, 11 Haw. 293, in which there was no testimony to reduce the offense below the grade of murder. That was the sole point in issue in that case, but, in the present case there is evidence showing that Yamane and Osaki were present at the killing of Chew Foon Wing, although it may be uncertain who struck the fatal blow, and it is unnecessary to consider what influenced the jury to reduce the offense from the crime of murder to the crime of manslaughter. Independently of Ihara...
