Excerpt from Joseph Frega Author of a New System for Tailors: With Its Relative Teaching of the Fashion, Patented by the United States Government; Division of Personal Measures According to the New Method and New Patented Squares; Patent, March 24, 1885 From some geometrical treatises, it appears that the three circumferences of chest, life and trunk should be able, according to their ideal system, to make the full dress. If such a theory was right, we would not need other and several measures, in length especially; but we see that we require so many of them, that we must come to the conclusion that the system is an imperfect one, except for those artists. Skillful in the trade and furnished with a large personal ability. Now, the trouble is that nobody undertook to study geometry in its essence, so that to give the reader the capacity of fully understanding the rules and pre cepts. I would scarcely say to put the learner in a degree of cutting after the change of anew fashion, except for those furnished of sufficient natural genius, and who...
