Excerpt from The Boston Committee in Canada: A Series of Eight Letters Reprinted From the Boston Atlas The farm of Mr. Webster, in Franklin, is one of the most beautiful objects along this route. His neat country residence with its ample fields, its fine lawns, and the high state of culture which his lands present, appears in marked contrast with the surrounding country. The entire line of roads over which the delegation travel led, appears to be well built there is no visible evidence that the work has been slighted, or that the price of the stock has affected the thorough character of the road bed, and all the fixtures or furniture of the lines. Every indication evinced that the stockholders were the only parties who had cause for complaint respecting the pecuniary difficulties under which the work had been executed.
