C., In the Halls of the Mechanics Union, at Charleston, S. C., June 6th, 1889 It was with no little pleasure, and certainly with no less surprise, that some weeks ago I received an invitation to deliver a lecture in this new and well-appointed hall of the Mechanics Union. Coming at a time when I was in the midst of the most pressing engagements, and when I could not well see how it would be possible for me to accept, my first impulse was to decline, with thanks for the honor conferred. But when I remembered that the invitation had come from the Mutual Aid Association, a society that owes its origin to an accident which befell an employee of the City Railway Company, and which was founded by a gentleman who was once my pupil, - Mr. Adolph Melchers - a society whose cornerstone is benevolence, and whose shibboleth is charity, so catholic in...
