RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 68 pages. Original publisher: Washington, D. C. : U. S. Govt. Accountability Office, 2009 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)495786253 Subject: Defense contracts -- United States. Excerpt: . . . number and task order number. However, SPOT users are not required to enter task order numbers. For example, one SPOT entry only contained the contract number without an order number. In reviewing FPDS-NG data, we determined that DOD had placed 12 different orders - ranging from a few thousand dollars to over 129 million - against that contract. Based on the information in SPOT, DOD would not be able to determine which orders value and competition information should be imported from FPDS-NG. SPOT, as currently designed, also lacks the capability to readily generate reports on the number of killed or wounded contractor personnel. SPOT was upgraded in January 2009 to fulfill the NDAA for FY2008 requirement to track such information. Contractors can now update the status of their personnel in the system, including whether they have been killed or wounded, while agencies can run queries to identify the number of personnel with a current status of killed or wounded. However, the standard queries can only generate a list of personnel currently identified as killed or wounded and cannot be used to identify individuals who previously had the status of killed or wounded and whose records have become inactive or whose injured status changed when they returned to work. For example, if an individual has an injured status today and a query were run, that individual would be included in the report. If that individual then returned to work, the status would change and that individual would not appear on any subsequent injury reports, with the agencies having no means of determining...
