Excerpt: . . . 11 SHORT TERM CHALLENGES- Need to camouflage the complexity of the governance model One place for parents to get information on schools, register, file complaints, etc. Need for a clearinghouse for Community Involvement Anyone wishing to interact with the charter schools has no place to go. This includes donors, business partners, volunteers, social service agencies, etc. Educating the Public Everyone is accustomed to a top-down model for public education. They are used to going to the board and or the superintendent to get a decision made affecting all schools. With the majority of schools in the parish now chartered, New Orleans has a decentralized decisionmaking structure. UNINTENDED CONSEQUENCES (POSITIVE) More civic engagement. - Sectors of the community that long ago abandoned public education are now serving as charter board members and engaging in public education. No more circus-like board meetings. - The OPSB board meetings were destruc-tive and prevented civil discourse. Now, with the lack of one central authority, the obstructionists cannot gain...
