

The Rise and Fall of the Indigenous Business Development Center in Zimbabwe

By Tamuka Charles Chirimambowa

GRIN Verlag. Paperback. Condition: New. 50 pages. Dimensions: 8.3in. x 5.8in. x 0.1in. Bachelor Thesis from the year 2007 in the subject Politics - International Politics - Region: Africa, grade: 70, University of KwaZulu-Natal, language: English, abstract: Economic reform has become one of the major necessities of post-colonial African states, given years of slavery, apartheid, colonialism and underdevelopment. Many scholars have argued that Africas lack of development is due to the lack of African participation within the economic sphere, especially as a business class or bourgeoisie. They contend that African participation in business has been rare, and where granted it has been mostly within the peripheries or petty commerce. This study will investigate Zimbabwes IBDC with a view to going some way to answering the major question that arises out of this argument: is creating a nationalist indigenous entrepreneurial class the answer to Africas development problems. The focus of this study will be on the emergence of the IBDC as a vehicle for black empowerment. It will attempt to account for its successes, its failures, and its ultimate demise. The research will also chart how some of Zimbabwes most successful black entrepreneurs, some who have managed to establish a global presence,...
