Allow me to welcome you to my small village Kafre Nafra north of Cairo, in the Delta of the Nile Valley, in the middle of nowhere. I will take you to other villages, small towns, big cities, and to Cairo. You will have a taste of ancient Egyptian history and modern history too. We will visit Aswan City where I had my first job as a physician at Aswan General Hospital and where the High Dam was built. We will stopover at Abu Simbel where the great ancient temples were saved by the United Nations from disappearing under the water south of the High Dam. We will see Hurghada City on the Red Sea where I worked at Hurghada General Hospital, then Tripoli, Libya where I worked in a clinic in the early 1980 s. You would vacation with me at Tunisia, the island of Malta in the Mediterranean, Athens, and London before I visited the paradise of God on earth, the United States of America. The author lived that history growing up and witnessed his country endure many struggles, like him, to be free and prosperous, and to manage their resources to move ahead into a better life. This book is about fate, many choices in life, good or bad, and about having no regrets. This is my journey, sometimes I chose my fate but other times fate...
