I wish I could live in this palace for weeks. I should make wonderful discoveries. In old houses, whose roofs are supported by great beams of oak, I know they call the stoutest and most important the king beam, for without him the roof would fall. Just so, the Grizzly Giant is the king tree of the Mariposa Forest. There are other trees more beautiful and graceful, yet he is indisputably, undisputedly king, among lesser royalties and royal highnesses. All are crowned. These Sequoias aren t clothed with green, like other trees, but crowned with it, having also, here and there upon their breasts, green decoration and medals. Their bark folds and drapes them in mantles of royal purple, and their high crowns mingle gold with green. The Grizzly Giant s crown is of a strange shape, and very wonderful. He is alive, and looks at you, but he does not wish you to know that; so, if you are too curious, he often pretends to be a castle, ornamented with quantities of fantastic gargoyles. The castle has a theatre, into which you can see; and it is fitted up with extraordinary scenery. There is a museum of strange statues, too; headless torsos, and arms thicker through than a man is long. The princes and princesses, who are the Grizzly Giant s family and help him reign over his subjects, have to go and stand at a good distance, or they...
