Excerpt: . . . nobler purpose, and a greater achievement, not only for the Company, but also for our fair city of Dayton. In Far-OH Edlnburjh. Most heartily do I congratulate the Company and its employes and its officers over the settlement of the difliculty. I was thinking this evening, gentlemen, about one evening last summer when you were gathered here in this country, mourning the loss of one who helped to build up this Company. A message was handed to me in the old city of Edinburgh from one of the officers of this Company, telling that one loved member of the Company had passed away. I want to bear testimony to the loving sympathy and brotherly interest that was manifested in that old city when it was announced that one member of this Company had gone to rest. It is a great thing to be identified with any company that will reach around the world and will unite the hearts of men. I was profoundly impressed in Edinburgh in listening to the tributes of your employes, the representatives of the Company in Scotland, of their feeling of respect for the representative of the Company who had gone to rest. I wish you the largest possible success, and want to express deep interest in every effort of the N. C. R. Co. , not only for the good city of Dayton, but also through this city for the betterment of labor throughout the world. Rev. Father William...
