Commission on Ocean Policy, 2004 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)59132217 Subject: Ocean -- Government policy -- United States -- Planning. Excerpt: . . . BARDOLE Mr. Ray Bardole, Farmer, Rippey, Iowa Chicago, IL, Sept-24-2002, Non-point Source Pollution Panel Invited Testimony Key Points: I farm in the Raccoon River basin with water draining to the Raccoon River and to Snake Creek, a tribu-tary of the Raccoon. Nitrate has been identified as a contributing factor to the Hypoxia Zone in the Gulf of Mexico, with where I live, being identified as a major contributor of that nitrate. Nitrate comes from many sources; industry, agriculture, background, urban areas, and septic systems. In the last 10 years the amount of nitrogen used in the Raccoon River watershed has decreased, the amount of crop removed has increased, but the levels of nitrate in the Raccoon River have also increased. Agriculture has been moving toward less tillage for 15 years. Nutrient management is another part of solu-tion. One of the greatest impediments to change is an elderly, and or absentee landlord. Most of these land-lords want income from their investment, the land. In todays large confinement operations, much of their problems are point source. The problem is large confinements being placed too close together and therefore having more crop nutrients than can be eco-nomically spread. Recommendations: I believe the solution is written whole farm plans. These plans must be based on Best Management Practices that work for the soils and weather conditions expected where he farms. The federal government through CRP, WRP, and EQIP is providing large sources of money to install and maintain good practices. This is very positive and I would not change these programs....
