It is understood, of course, that it is impossible to have detailed information available, or to have formal authorization or financial arrangements completed for the 1919 projects this far in advance, and it is therefore only contemplated that the projects will be set forth as representing the approximate intention of the authorities in case the projects meet with favor. So far as city work is concerned, it would be impracticable to show its location on a state map and in such cases if a city map is available it would be desirable if the city map and a schedule similar to the one above described could be submitted. These maps and schedules, together with the forms HC-4 summarizing the needs of the state, counties, cities, and townships would afford the Council much useful information in outlining policies for next year. Reserving and Planting Roadside Trees The following notes on roadside trees are abstracted from an address delivered at the 5th Road Institute at the University of North Carolina, by J. S. Holmes, State Forester of North Carolina: There are two ways of securing roadside trees: reserving and planting. Instead of cutting down all the brush and young growth along the sides of the road, here and there thrifty young trees of suitable species can be reserved for future shade trees. In making such reservation, suitable kinds and properly shaped thrifty individuals should be selected. Most of the oaks, ashes, and...
