FBC LTD, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Branch of Research: Monthly Report of Forest Experiment Stations, Forest Products, Forest Economics, Range Research; September, 1931 On the return trip from West Virginia our party spent a day with the Maryland District Forester, Mr. Buckingham. Maryland has been buying land for state forests in that section of the State, and in addition to some of these lands, the party saw an excellent example of good silviculture in a further east, in Somerset County, Pennsylvania, the Station men paid a visit to the property of the Wilmore Real Estate Company, surface holder for the Berwind-White Coal Mining Company. The total property of acres is being handled on a most intelligent basis; the acres of farm land are being rented for cash or on shares, and as soon as any land fails to pay its way for agricultural use it is planted with forest trees. However, the plantations of the Company, some of them very interesting, are by no means as significant as the acres of land in natural forest. The Company's policy with respect to standing timber is to make improvement cuttings at once, marking for removal all mature trees, and all poorly-formed, diseased, or damaged ones of smaller size. This timber is taken to a small portable sawmill in the woods, where it is most carefully sawed to produce the highest grade of boards, switch ties, and similar products. All cull boards are then sent to a small dimension plant run by the Company, where with the help of electrically driven but extremely simple equipment other wise worthless material is converted into dimension stock for furniture and other woodworking plants, mine caps, contractors' wedges, sawdust, and some box...
