A wide range of subjects is found, as well as a wide range of grouping of subject matter. In English, for example, some schools have courses well organized under the head of English, with grammar, penmanship, spelling, etc., closely coordinated; others have courses appearing upon close examination to consist of reading or Chart 1. Chart 1. Graphic Representation Op The Data In Table 7. The heavy line denotes that the subject is required, the light line that it is elective, and the broken line that it is not given. The number of schools is indicated. literature, two periods a week; grammar, two periods a week, and a period of penmanship and spelling--these sectionalized and presented in a wholly separated fashion. Others have made no attempt to unify English. The same may be said of the...
