Condition: New. 142 Strand was the home of the brilliant young publisher John Chapman. All the avant-garde writers and thinkers of Victorian London gathered here, among them Carlyle, Dickens, Thackeray, John Stuart Mill, Herbert Spencer and the scientist Thomas Henry Huxley, as well as visiting Americans, refugees from revolutionary Europe and radical feminists. They contributed to Chapman's campaigning and attended his lively evening parties. The Strand was packed with booksellers, magazine publishers, theatres, clubs and quack doctors. Just behind lay the brothels of Covent Garden and the disreputable pornographers of Holywell Street, while Westminster and the Houses of Parliament were a short distance away. Chapman's circle touched all these worlds, and Aston's vivid story of unconventional lives and unorthodox views takes us to the heart of Victorian culture.
