Excerpt from The Nation and the Kingdom: Annual Sermon Before the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions Lift up thine eyes round about and see; they all gather themselves together, they come unto thee; thy sons shall come from far and thy daughters shall be carried in the arms. Then thou shalt see and be radiant, and thy heart shall thrill and be enlarged; because the abundance of the sea shall be turned unto thee, the wealth of the nations shall come unto thee. This is part of a fervent apostrophe to the nation as the servant of Jehovah, that ideal in which was concentrated the hopes of the great unknown prophet of the exile. What kindles his expectation is his vision of a regenerated society, a society from which injustice and oppression and misery and want and all iniquity and wrong shall be put away; in which peace and good will shall abide and order and security shall reign. The prophet represents Jehovah as pledging his protection and care to this holy nation, this peculiar people; they are indeed, to represent him; it is through them that he is to be made known in the earth and therefore all his resources are at their disposal to enrich them and defend them, and crown them with his benediction. Violence shall no more be heard in thy land, desolation nor destruction within thy borders; but thou shalt call thy walls Salvation and thy gates praise. What the prophet beholds in his vision, is the Kingdom of God, the reign of righteousness and truth and love in...
