Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2014. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .One of the basic aims of education, in general, is to teach us how to be a lifelong researcher, how to discover new fountains of knowledge and illuminate our lives. Knowledge itself is based on research and every discipline be it philosophy, science, technology, art or humanities, they all have one common pillar which is research. With the advance of technology, the nature and means of research has completely changed. It becomes now much easier to conduct a research and collaborate with people whom you have never met before and in real time. The resources you might need for backup are ubiquitous online and with a single click, you can have access to an ocean of knowledge. This ocean, however, requires an expert crew to guide and direct the ship to safety. The crews we are talking about here are nobody else but teachers. Those are the real people whose job if done effectively, will change the whole equation.
