C: How It Fared in Two Wars and an Earthquake The names or titles of these Lords Proprietors are preserved in the two Carolinas in the names of counties, rivers, etc., as, for in stance, the rivers Ashley and Cooper; the counties of Berkeley and Colleton in South Carolina; the towns and counties of Beaufort in both States; Albemarle Sound and the counties of Carteret, Craven and Granville, in North Carolina, and others. Their names remain, but their authority was of short duration, the government of the Province of Carolina having been trans ferred to the Crown in 1719 - 50 far as it concerned Charleston and South Carolina. In 1685 and thereafter came the Huguenots from France, after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. Not cordially welcomed at first, they soon became, as their descendants have continued to be, one of the best elements of population here as elsewhere.
