Excerpt from The Feed Situation, Vol. 174: April 1959 Nearly 81] million acres of corn are in prospect for 1959, 9 million acres or 12 percent more than in 1958. This would bring total corn acreage to the highest level in 10 years. Practically all of this increase will be in the North Central region. This sharp increase in corn acreage reflects discontinuance of the acreage reserve program, which included million acres of corn in 1958, and the acreage allotment program. Also, it appears that farmers are shifting some land from oats, soybeans and sorghum to corn. While it is too early to forecast 1959 production, 195h-58 yields on the prospective acreages by States would produce a 1959 crop of billion bushels. Corn yields, however, have trended upward rather sharply since World War II. If adjustment is made for this upward trend in yield, s normal growing season in 1959 would result in a crop of around it billion bushels. This would be a little above the record crop of 1958 and more than a fifth larger than the 1953-57 average. About the...
