An-swer-ed re-mem-ber-ed mock-ed shock-ing won-der-ed pro-phet shud-der-ed pun-ish-ment hon-our I Won t do it; do it yourself, I heard a boy say, and it was a big boy who spoke, and the man to whom he spoke was a very, very old man, and this boy s grandfather. It was only a little work the poor old man had asked the boy to do for him, and yet he answered so unkindly and rudely, and this work would have taken up hardly any of the boy s time, for he was very strong. But those were not the only words he said. Many a bad word I heard come out of his lips; many shocking names I heard him call that dear old man, till I shuddered, and put both my hands up to my ears to shut out the ugly sounds. I cannot repeat to you the words the boy spoke, for they were so very wicked, but I could not help fearing, as I heard them, that some evil must befall a lad who could thus speak to his grandfather. The punishment that befell the little children who mocked God s aged...
