Wolfdancer Publishing, United States, 2011. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. This book describes the process of healing from an auto-immune illness, specifically Inflammatory Bowel Disease. The author discusses both traditional and alternative treatments. The book details extensive research into illness and healing and reviews what worked and didn't work for the author in his quest to heal from what are traditionally viewed as chronic, incurable, lifelong diseases. The suggestions here are targeted for Ulcerative Colitis, Crohn's Disease, and other auto-immune diseases but should also be helpful to those suffering from Irritable Bowel Syndrome or digestive problems. Using an ecological viewpoint that explores an individual's health as the center of larger food, drug, and medical systems, the author focuses on the role that food choices, additives, and the modern western diet play in health as well as noting specific foods and food additives that contribute to Inflammatory Bowel Disease and other auto-immune diseases.
