Excerpt from The Conduct of the Ministry Impartially Examined: And the Pamphlet Entitled Considerations on the Present German War, Refuted From Its Own Principles Upon a candid Review of these Considerations, it mull be owned that there is merit in the composition; and there are some animadversions in it, to which every man, who is not a bigot to party, must readily assent. The writers ridicule, for instance, on the national idolatry of the K -g of P - a, is, in some respects, not ill placed. And it must be consessed, that the regard we have paid to that monarch, by our public illuminations, extravagant elogiums, and other testimonies of indiscreet attachment, have been carried to an excels, which has done no credit to the wisdom or spirit of Great-Britain. But our Considerer s Antiprussian sarcasms are too indiscriminate;and it is the intent of these sheets to (hew that his reflentions throughout are either false, or exaggerated and fallacious: that, in (liort, he has either been deceived himself, or, what is more to his dishonour, has endeavoured to deceive others. He writes, it is true, with great appearance of dinterestedness and moderation. He has too much judgment, to be abusive or scurrilous in terms: but an acute observer may be led to conclude, from his matter that he has no sincere disposition to candor and impartiality.
