Although their college research work is going well, a mysterious summons calls them back to the side of their mentor, Professor Henderson. Boys, he says, you must excuse me for not saying why I sent for you. My guest, Mr. Roumann, has laid a strange proposition before me. I hardly know what to think. Mr. Roumann has proposed a wonderful trip to -- To planet Mars! bursts out Mr. Roumann. We are going to make the most wonderful journey on record. A trip through space! Such an opportunity for reaching it, and proving whether or not there is life there, will not occur again for many years. It is now but thirty-five millions of miles away from us. Soon it will begin to recede -- at the rate of twenty-eight millions of miles a year! Roy Rockwood s Through Space to Mars, written in the early years of the 20th century, remains a refreshing, optimistic space adventure for young-at-heart readers even a century later.
