Confessions of a Secret Latina: How I Fell Out of Love with Castro in Love with the Cuban People

By Barbara E. Joe

Createspace. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 434 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 1.1in. Whatever your ethnic background or personal opinion of Fidel Castro, you will find something new and revealing in this book. It offers a frank firsthand account of one woman's journey, not only through Cuba, but through a life filled with unique challenges and tragedies. When Castro first rose to power, the author, like so many Americans, was entranced by the romantic vision of a scrubby revolutionary defeating the hated dictator Fulgencio Batista. But her years of direct experience with Cubans and within Cuba itself gradually eroded that vision. Then, unexpectedly, she found herself being attacked by a once close friend of Latino heritage, who not only vehemently disagreed with her negative evaluation of Castro's reign, but harshly questioned her right as a non-Latina to even comment on it. He dubbed her lazy and a nunny bunny, a phony gringa do-gooder displaying lamentable Republican-style self-exculpation, summarily dismissing her decades of involvement in Cuban human rights as an Amnesty International volunteer. These very personal attacks triggered her own self-doubts, launching her onto a meticulous backward look over her entire life's trajectory, especially her involvement with...
