But under this conviction, and influenced by this persuasion, these extracts--the genuine productions of a mind by nature not unfurnished, by culture improved and matured, and by grace richly endowed--are put into the readers hand, with one fervent petition--That he may be benefited--and that God in her may be glorified! 1. LETTERS WRITTEN PREVIOUSLY TO THE PERIOD OF MARRIAGE. Among these, some have been preserved, strikingly illustrative of the change in the writers opinions and habits; which occurred, as it appears, in the summer of the year 1808, and the twentythird of her life. They are addressed to one whose name must not be mentioned: --who desires no testimony of his labor of love, like that hereafForded, nor thirsts for human praise, but whose record is on high. I. While I make my acknowledgments to yourself, let me not forget who is the great..
