Excerpt from Proposed Regulations by the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service to Establish Prohibitions and Restrictions Concerning Imported Nonmanufactured Wood Articles: Hearing Before the Subcommittee on Specialty Crops and Natural Resources of the Committee on Agriculture House of Representatives One Hundred Third Congress Second Session, June 29, 1994 They are admitting there is a continuing problem. It could be simply solved at very little expense. Heat treat the logs thoroughly in New Zealand and Chile. It would not be that expensive and it would avoid the risk. Why take the risk? Why give someone a buck a thousand or two bucks a thousand additional profit to risk the entire ecosystem of the West? Does not make sense to me. Mr. Smith of Oregon. So you are not advocating the elimination of imports of logs or wood products; you are more concerned about the scientific mitigation possibility of insect introduction? Mr. Defazio. That is correct. And from the beginning I have said what I want to see is these logs treated in such a way, starting with the Siberian logs to absolutely minimize risk. And the Siberian recommendations, I think, were pretty thorough. Mr. Smith of Oregon. So we will listen to the scientists also to determine whether you are right or wrong. Mr. Defazio. Sure, but, again, obviously, treat everybody with the same degree of useful skepticism you usually treat experts. Mr. Smith of Oregon. Your experts or mine? Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Rose. Any other questions? I think you should just come on up here and sit with us. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at This...
