The Money Machine Building Club: How to Teach Your Children to Make Their Birthday Money Work for Them, is a home financial education system that focuses on helping children learn financial concepts at a young age. It assists them in playing an active role in building their financial freedom every day of the week. It s true that what you practice you will become good at. And this book provides the step by step direction to practice learning the financial concepts to help your child have the financial savvy to leverage in the future. Finance, investing, and building money machines is not taught in school. Everything else is. Something that impacts us everyday of our adult life is not properly addressed in our youth, so children all over the world develop bad money habits. Habits that leave us struggling and in debt. In addition, children are being sent to college to sign financial contracts that will have a tremendous impact on their future ability to attain wealth. So it is time to start developing the correct mindset about money that will...
