Excerpt from Individuals and Organizations: The Process of Joining-Up In this essay we would like to share some of our attempts to assist individuals in entering organizations. James Coleman has noted that while we are prepared in our youth, through family, friends, and school, to deal with our personal lives and with our relationships in small groups, nowhere are we prepared to deal with large institutions. The programs described here are designed to meet this later problem. In a sense we have seen our selves in these programs as the individual s ombudsman, helping him to negotiate a meaningful psychological contract with the organization.
